DOCUTAH PRIVACY POLICY

We respect your privacy and want you to know what information about you we collect and what we do with that information. In order to help you understand how the information you provide DOCUTAH will be used, the following Privacy Policy has been created. This Privacy Policy applies to all information we collect or receive from you. Please note that the DOCUTAH Site may contain links to other websites and occasionally other websites may be co-branded with the DOCUTAH name. Websites that are linked to DOCUTAH or carry DOCUTAH brand may have privacy policies that differ from that of DOCUTAH.

INFORMATION WE COLLECT

Registration Information. You are not required to register or give us any personal information about yourself in order to visit the Site and to view certain content made generally available on our Website. However, we may offer you the opportunity to register with us or to sign up for our mailing list. If you choose to register, you are asked to give us your name and email address. At that time, you may also be asked to provide us with additional information, such as your age, occupation, gender, and other personal information about yourself in order to receive additional information about our services.

Mailing Lists. In order to keep you informed about our services, we may send e-mails and announcements that are needed for the administration of our Website and services. We also give our users the option of joining our mailing list to receive additional information about our services. You can always change your options by emailing unsubscribe@docutah.com. Each marketing e-mail from DOCUTAH will include instructions for how to unsubscribe from our mailing list.

Automatic Collection of Data. You may be able to visit our Website and use certain of our services while remaining anonymous. However, whether you have registered with us or not, DOCUTAH may still collect certain non-personally identifiable information about your use of our services. For example, DOCUTAH might collect information concerning the type of Internet browser you are using, the type of computer operating system you are using, your IP address, your connection speed, the domain name of your Internet service provider, the geographic location from which you are accessing our service and/or the Website or advertisement from which you linked to the DOCUTAH Website.

Once you have registered with us, we also track and collect information about you, including your transactions with us, our affiliates, or others, and your site usage patterns, such as the pages on the Website you have visited, searches you have conducted and the amount of time you have spent on our Website. If you contact us, we may keep a record of your correspondence. Cookies. When you visit our Website or click through hyperlinks appearing thereon, or use one or more of our services, we may use an industry-wide technology called "cookies" which stores certain information on your computer and which will allow us to customize your experience to better match your interests and preferences or simply facilitate your signing-in to use the services. Most browsers will allow you to erase cookies from your computer hard drive, block acceptance of cookies, or receive a warning before a cookie is stored. Please refer to your browser instructions or help screen to learn more about these functions. Please note, however, that if you set your browser to block acceptance of cookies, you will not be able to use the services or enter our Website Security Software. The DOCUTAH service works in conjunction with your third party supplied media player (see minimum specifications), which, among other things, protects against unauthorized use, including copying, of the downloaded digital files that you obtain limited rights to use. The security on the media player software may need to be upgraded by the third party suppliers, which may include, but may not be limited to, Microsoft, Adobe and Real Networks. Your media player will connect to an Internet site operated by those third party suppliers, and will be sent a security file, along with a unique identifier, which does not contain any personal information about you. The third party supplier's use of this information is subject to such third party supplier's privacy policies which can be accessed from its website.

WHAT WE DO WITH YOUR INFORMATION

In general, DOCUTAH may use non-personally identifiable information about you to improve and enhance the services we provide. DOCUTAH may share this information with the suppliers of content on the service, affiliates and other entities in non-personal form to show general demographic and preference information among users of the services or for other purposes. This information may include usage and demographic data, but it will not include personal information (such as your email address). If you provide DOCUTAH with personally identifiable information, we will take reasonable and appropriate steps to protect this information. Except as otherwise described in this Privacy Policy, DOCUTAH will not disclose, share, sell or rent personally identifiable information collected on our Website to any third party without your prior consent. If you access our services using a co-branded version of our Website that contains messaging that information will be shared with that affiliate whose company name is displayed on the co-branded site, any personal or non-personal information collected may be shared with that affiliate. Any use of such information by DOCUTAH will be subject to this Privacy Policy and any use of such information by the affiliate will be subject to this Privacy Policy and the affiliate's privacy policy. We do not share your credit card account information with Affiliate Sites or any other third parties, other than order processing and credit card clearance service providers as described below.

SECURITY

We use reasonable security methods to protect the data that resides on our servers. However, because no security system is impenetrable, we cannot guarantee the security of our servers. It is also possible that information you supply to us will be intercepted during transmission. Whenever you give DOCUTAH sensitive information (e.g., credit card numbers), DOCUTAH will take commercially reasonable steps to protect such information by establishing a secure connection with your Web browser. DOCUTAH employs an industry standard technology known as a secure-socket-layer ("SSL") to protect the transmission of payment information to the Website. You can check the security of your connection by looking at the address in your browser window. After you have accessed a secure server protected by SSL, the first characters of the address will change from "http" to "https." DOCUTAH Privacy Policy does not extend to anything that is inherent in the operation of the Internet, and therefore beyond DOCUTAH'S control, and is not to be applied in any manner contrary to applicable law or governmental regulation.
